CONSTITUTION OF
BORNEO ORANGUTAN SURVIVAL
(BOS) - AUSTRALIA

MEMORANDUM OF ASSOCIATION

PREAMBLE

“There is no greater gift to the future than the preservation and conservation of our Earth’s natural environment. Today it is estimated that in the world’s rainforests alone, 27,000 species are extinguished every year – 74 species a day. The population of wild orangutans has declined by more than half in the last 20 years, and approximately 80% of its natural habitat has been lost in the last half century. Orangutans are considered indicator species for forest health in the Borneo and Sumatra rainforest (the second largest rainforest left standing today), which means that if orangutans survive in a given location, most other native species, including plants, and insects can also survive for posterity.”

Borneo Orangutan Survival (BOS) – Australia is therefore dedicated to the conservation of orangutans and the preservation of the Earth’s natural environment.
